

What are tokens?

A token is an unreproducible, verifiable digital record that represents a metered resource.

They are often implemented via smart contracts: software collectively run by a network of computers.

What is tokenization?

